

Welcome to Intownmix

Trusted by both professional artists and local business, intownmix is a new media featuring lifestyle business information and news. Find out who's doing business with who, trends and reviews locally, nationally and internationally. Our Mix Guide will help locals and visitors navigate the unique business neighborhoods in urban Dallas. The weekly e-blast celebrated for getting the inside scoop will continue with original writing and content. Tweets and shout outs are cool but your brand or story is more than a moment in time. While we populate the site, add features and work out the kinks; we'll introduce you to a mix of characters who put the Big in Big D art, business, real estate and non-profit news! We're in BETA, what's your story?

ANTEKS GRAND RE-OPENING

Anteks Home Furnishings
1135 Dragon Street
214.528.5567

Owner Jason Lenox opened the store quietly last Saturday during the DADA Fall Gallery Walk which was a smashing success by the way, despite the downpour. Like their Houston location, Anteks (pronounced Antiques) features beautiful take-with and custom pieces from elegant to casual and large to small scale for the manse or an urban cowgirl condo. This piece perfect for any boudoir setting or man's dressing room was our pick of the day.

Having recently moved from Lovers Lane to the Design District, the furniture gallery is one of our favorite spots to get in touch with our inner Texana or for your inner Scottish heritage, they offer the full assortment of family plaid patterns as shown in these dining photos.

Anteks also features a wide selection of unique office furniture and an assortment of tableware, books, lamps, pillows, ottomans, whimsical pieces and other accessory essentials just in time for the holidays. To celebrate the move, they are offering 30% off through September.

Just the smell of the hides and horns showroom with their exceptional leathers and trims is dizzying and makes us giddy enough to save a horse and ride a cowboy.
